U11 Hurlers Feile Iomana 2013

Ballyboden Feile Iomana 2013.

On Sunday 9th of June Ballyboden u11 Hurlers welcomed Sixmilebridge Dicksboro and Naas to the annual Feile Iomana. All the preparation had been done, sandwiches made, cakes baked and only the matter of the hurling to get on with.

We had some excellent displays from all the teams involved. The skill, determination and application of all players was excellent.

All games were played in a great spirit. Boden finished 2nd in the round robin phase which progressed to a final meeting with Dicksboro. The final was a tight game with Dicksboro winning out in the end. Naas GAA edged out Sixmilebridge in the Shield Final.

A big thank you to all the parents who helped out on the day. A special mention to all the players who did their own fundraising for the event. Each player received a Sliothar which were presented by Simon Lambert and Shane Durkin.

Coaching Corner - "Developing Concentration"

Importance of concentration:

It is important that all mental aspects of a player's performance and progress should not go ignored. Developing mental stamina, particularly through improved focus and concentration, should not be relegated as subordinate to technical skill acquisition or physical fitness.

If one concedes legitimacy in the maxim "work smarter, not harder" developing concentration may be one of the most beneficial exercises employed by the coach. Is this not, however, overstating the case? Well, let us consider that when a player loses concentration it cannot be compensated for with skill or talent, no matter how great. Looked at from this perspective, it should be suggested that it is necessary that the mental aspects of coaching should not be overlooked. Furthermore, it should be an integral component of the learning process of the young throughout their early development.

Activities which promote concentration:

Small sided games should be employed in order to maximize players' concentration. The reason is because the mental aspects of the game are duplicated in small sided games, which training drills and exercises fail to reproduce.

Small sided games develop elements such as competition, co-operation and transition. Such exercises possess the potential to create the level of intensity necessary to focus the mind and hold attention.
